ROOSEVELT CAUSES WILD TUMULT

FIRST SESSION OF THE CONVENTION.

Wolcott Chosen Temporary Chairman--Hanna's Witty Speech.

CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, June 19. Chairman Hanna, of the National Committee, called the Republican National Convention to order at 12:35 P. M.

After the prayer Senator Hanna made a speech. He said that Philadelphia was the cradle of the Republican party, and mentioned McKinley's name, at which cheering broke loose, led by Grosvener, of Ohio, Roosevelt at the same time waving his slouch hat.

After Hanna's little talk he introduced Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, as Temporary Chairman of the Convention. The Colorado man made a brilliant speech, practically defending the foreign policy of the Administration and with a careful vein of benevolent imperialism apparent throughout.

There was not more than a handful of delegates in the hall a quarter of an hour before the stated time for the opening of the convention, and outside there was a strange lack of interest displayed.

building was overcrowded, and the procession of carriages was no more imposing or numerous than one leading to a State fair—perhaps not quite so much so.

The sergeants-at-arms and the ushers had their hands full attending to the crowds. In the seats back of the stage were many distinguished personages.

The leaders were slow in arriving, and it was not until Senator Hanna put in an appearance, at 11:45 o'clock, that the enthusiasm of thousands was unhooked. He got a cheer as he moved up the centre aisle, the full length of the hall, to the platform. Gen. Grosvener, the white-bearded old veteran, was immediately recognized, and he, too, got a cheer.

CONVENTION AT A GLANCE.

11.40—Convention hall is slowly filling.
11.45—Mr. Hanna enters and is cheered.
12.00—Roosevelt, accompanied by Depew, enters and receives greater reception than is accorded any other delegate. Men cheer and women stand up and clap their hands and wave their handkerchiefs.
12.35—Convention called to order by Senator Hanna.
12.44—Hanna speaks. At the mention of McKinley's name Grosvener was the first to rise to his feet. He led the cheering, which lasted for a minute.
12.51—Hanna presents Temporary Chairman Wolcott.
1.35—Frank S. Black, seated beside Lou Payn, has been reading a newspaper ever since Wolcott began speaking. It has caused much comment.
2.07—Wolcott lifted Convention off its feet by saying: "The American people are not politicians. They will not surrender their convictions or their territory. Many of the brave men will return home, but hundreds lie buried on the shores of Luzon, and no foreign flag shall evermore wave over that island."
2.10—Wolcott finishes amid great applause.
2.17—Gov. Taylor was recognized by the chair, and the moment his name was mentioned it caused intense cheering. He rose in his place and to the cries of "platform" he waved his hand deprecatingly. The speaker continued, and he walked to the platform amid more cheers. He only had a motion that the list of officials be accepted.
3.00—Convention adjourned until noon to-morrow.

1 TO 10 ROOSEVELT IS NAMED FOR PRESIDENT.

Odds of 1 to 10 were being offered on the Stock Exchange this afternoon that Gov. Roosevelt would be nominated for President—not Vice-President—at the Philadelphia convention. Several bets of $10 to $100 were made.

NEW YORK DELEGATION MEETS.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Every one is waiting for the result of the New York delegation's meeting, set for 4 o'clock to-day, and late of Gov. Roosevelt hangs upon the decision of the delegation. If the delegates vote to accept him nothing can prevent the Governor's nomination. If they decide for some one else all talk of Roosevelt will be at an end. Neither Senator Platt nor Mr. Odell will increase the strain of the delegation, but it is known that the machine men are in absolute control and whatever Platt orders will be done.

IN CONVENTION.

(Special to The Evening World.)

CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, June 19.

Gov. Roosevelt was the centre of a big sensation just before the Republican Convention adjourned, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

By a sudden impulse, soon after the temporary officers were announced there was a movement toward the Governor. He was soon in the middle of a struggling crowd and was holding a regular levee in the pit.

Delegates swarmed around him and spectators hung over the galleries to see him. The New Mexico delegates, with broad sombreros, climbed over seats in their eagerness to get to him and shake his hand.

Chauncey M. Depew and the other big guns of the New York delegation were ignored. Many of the delegates climbed onto their chairs and watched the crowd eddy around him. Order was restored with great difficulty by Chairman Wolcott.

Hanna watched the scene with blank amazement, while Platt sat smiling. It was said on the floor that Hanna and Platt had come to an agreement at the conference. Roosevelt would say nothing. He referred all inquirers to Odell, who said the Governor would be nominated.

The other sensation of the convention was the recognition of ex-Gov. Taylor, of Kentucky, by Chairman Wolcott, who called him to the platform.

The convention adjourned at 3 o'clock until noon to-morrow.

GOV. ROOSEVELT MAY BE NOMINATED YET.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—4 P. M.—The Vice-Presidential situation at this hour is as follows:

New York leaders say that the situation is not changed from last night. Senator Platt and Gov. Roosevelt have not conferred since yesterday afternoon, an hour before the Governor wrote his statement asking his friends not to vote for him in the convention.

Chairman Odell, of the Republican State Committee, who sat just behind Senator Platt, said there had been no further conference between Senator Platt and the Governor. "I do not know just what the New York delegates will do this afternoon on the Vice-Presidency," he said. "It may be that New York will have a candidate to present to the convention. I should not be surprised if it did."

Most of the New York delegates believe Gov. Roosevelt will finally agree to accept the nomination.

The two most conspicuous figures that loom up as Vice-Presidential possibilities are Roosevelt and Long. Nine-tenths of the delegates believe it will be Roosevelt. The Governor himself is as mum as a clam.

"I HAVE NOT DECLINED."—Roosevelt

(Special to The Evening World.)

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Gov. Roosevelt said to-day to a New York delegate:

"I feel a great load lifted off my shoulders. I don't believe that the Convention will nominate me, but I must say again that I have not said at any time that I will decline to run if the nomination comes to me. It depends upon the results to-day. I do not dare to prophesy. I hope the convention will nominate the right man. I don't believe that I am the right man."
